

Dear [MR./Mrs./Ms.] [Hiring Manager's Name],

I'm writing to express my interest in the [position name] position at [Company Name] (City). Motivated to progress my personal development in this field I fell in love with after spending over 10 years as a mechanical design engineer. These two disciplines often overlapped and I became more intrigued and curious. With the mandatory covid restrictions I began building projects and supporting my friends on their start-ups.

As a mechanical design engineer, I have experience in various industries from Automotive, Industrial Agriculture, Oil & Gas, renewable energy and consumer products. With this experience I find many transferrable skills suitable for web development. I enjoy problem solving, building client relationships, managing projects /products, and research & development. I'm excited for a career change and I'm ready to apply my passion for coding to a exciting engineering team to develop amazing solutions.

I have played many team leader positions, managing workloads of team members, delegating task and with this I take my own duties and responsibilities in high regards. Looking for a role that will provide me with an opportunity to become a chartered engineer as a current member of an engineering body.

I have enclosed my CV for your review which I hope will show my enthusiasm for this role and also the skills I can bring to this company. I hope you will consider me for a further discussion of this position in person, and would welcome an opportunity for an interview.

Sincerely,

Mahad Falage
